Manager Reflection	Employee Reflection
Response: Bruce continues to be the center of gravity for making progress in SRv6. From significant customer engagements with the largest hyperscalers to world class labs. Bruce continues to be on the leading edge technically. What makes this more impressive is the number of people who reach out to tell me how collaborative Bruce is. Simply put, everybody wants to work with him.	Response: Learning and development efforts • I have integrated AI tools into my daily workflow and have gotten very good at using them to maximum effect • Formally selected my DSE mentor: Vaughn Suazo. We meet bi-weekly and he usually assigns deliverables • I had no experience with Cilium egress gateway, but the Adobe POC had floundered, so I jumped in and learned how to work with it and got the effort back on track

Development opportunities

- I am highly visible and have a lot of influence within the PSE/DSE community and with PE/DE's in engineering, but I don't interact much with execs on either the sales or Eng side. Definitely an area for improvement

Key achievements

- I led the April BE/Sales SRv6 workshop and owned scheduling, logistics, etc.
- Developed multiple customer POC/ demos: MSFT SRv6 for WAN, SRv6 on SONiC for AI backend, Oracle SRv6 for AI backend (both XR and SONiC), Akamai custom controller SRv6 use case, Adobe Cilium egress GW. Also CLEU and CLUS labs, which now include both Cilium SRv6 and SONiC SRv6 fabric load balancing
- Delivered a 3-hour SRv6 tutorial/ workshop session onsite at Oracle
- Built the 'srctl' CLI tool for Jalapeno - used it in 5/22 demo for Akamai
- Built a Jalapeno API, UI, and initial code for the AI load balancing use case
- Developed and delivered a pair of Containerlab/Github/dCloud/Cilium sessions, one for SRF and the other for the CAI VT
- Mentorship and hiring: helped interview candidates for the Google team, Nacho didn't quite make PSE, but we'll have a strong case next
- Three approved patent applications (sent to US patent office) and one patent issued

Comment: Bruce is interested in increasing his visibility with the SE team through more live engagements. He's going to be on the lookout for more of those. He is also going to focus on executive communications and looking for opportunities to share his work and progress upleveled for a senior audience. When identified we will work to tune, practice and coach on the message.
